Dharma message by Jill Teiho Wagner

Shakyamuni Buddha was born on the 8th of April in Lumbini Garden in northern India (present-day Nepal) almost 2,600 years ago. Today, we celebrate his birth by pouring sweet tea over a small statue of the baby Buddha to remind us of the sweet rain that fell from the heavens at the time of his birth.

The Dharma message will be delivered by Jill Teiho Wagner. Lunch will be prepared by the Daifukuji Zazenkai. Desserts and fruits are welcome.

Flowers are needed to decorate the hanamido (flower shrine) and also for the altars. Please deliver flowers by the morning of Friday, April 12.

Hanamatsuri means "festival of flowers." Please join our Sangha in celebrating the Buddha's birth.

All are welcome!

News from the Daifukuji Fujinkai Women's Association

Pancake Breakfast Mahalo

We would like to thank the public who came out to support our Fujinkai pancake breakfast fundraiser & plant and baked goods sale on February 23, 2013. It would not have been successful were it not for the dedication of our hardworking Fujinkai members.

Team III thanks everyone for their hard work, as well as for the donations of ingredients, plants, and other items. We also appreciate the generous monetary donations received. The net profit came to $3,368. How very fortunate we are to have such great Fujinkai members!

It was wonderful seeing temple members, friends, and folks from the community enjoying a leisurely breakfast together and socializing at the temple on a Saturday morning.

In Gassho,

Fujinkai Team III

Special Evening Program Held at Daifukuji

A special program was held at Daifukuji on Friday evening, March 8. The program began with words of welcome by Rev. Jiko, who explained that although Rev. Dai-En Bennage's Hawaii Dharma Tour had to be cancelled due to illness, an alternate program had been put together with the help of many people; particularly, the Daifukuji Zazenkai.

Rev. Jiko's introduction was followed by the ringing of the temple bell by Amy Jikai and a shakuhachi and harp performance by Manuel and Bernice Roberto that deepened the serenity of the atmosphere inside the temple. After this offering of exquisite Zen music, the Sangha chanted the Hannya Shingyo, also known as the Heart of Great Perfect

Wisdom Sutra, dedicating the merit of the chanting to the healing of the earth, wind, land, and waters, to the awakening of all peoples, and to the alleviation of the suffering of all sentient beings.

The highlight of the evening was a presentation on water & their crystals by world reknown author Dr. Masaru Emoto, who spoke about the effect that our thoughts, words, and vibrations have on water, including the large amount of water in our bodies. He spoke about his research and discoveries revealed through photographs capturing the formation of water crystals in response to various words, sounds, music, and intentions. Simply put, expressions of love and gratitude lead to the formation of beautifully formed, well-developed water crystals, whereas expressions of anger and negativity result in the formation of deformed crystals.

In particular, Dr. Emoto showed photographs of water that had been exposed to the kanji characters of the Hannya Shingyo and to a recording of the chanting of the sutra by a group of Shingon Buddhist monks on Mt. Koya. He generously donated a copy of his book Mizu Ga Kotaeta "Hannya Shingyo" to Daifukuji. This book, which includes a DVD, will be placed in the Japanese section of the temple's lending library.

We thank Dr. Emoto, his assistants Gen and Yumi Morita, Manuel and Bernice Roberto, and the members of the Daifukuji Zazenkai for an evening of tranquility and peace.

Welcome, New Members

The members of the Daifukuji Family Sangha happily welcome Heidi, Noah, and Naomi Nikolai.

Teiho received a certificate from Bishop Komagata & Kenneth Kunisaki at the Hawaii Soto Mission Association meeting in Honolulu.

Daifukuji Board president Stephen Tanaka presented a congratulatory gift to Jill Teiho at the Spring Higan service.

Congratulating Jill Teiho Wagner

Our Daifukuji Soto Mission Sangha extends our congratulations to Jill Teiho upon her completion of the Hawaii Soto Mission Association's lay temple assistant training program. At the HSMA's spring meeting which was held on February 17 at the Pagoda Hotel in Honolulu, a ceremony was held during which Teiho received a certificate from Bishop Shugen Komagata and the Hawaii Soto Mission Association.

At our temple's Spring Higan service on March 17, a congratulatory gift was presented to Teiho by Stephen Tanaka on behalf of the Daifukuji Board and Sangha, while Rev. Jiko expressed her gratitude for Teiho's dedicated service to the Three Treasures and Daifukuji community.

The Lay Temple Assistant Program by Rev. Jiko Nakade

The Hawaii Soto Mission Association offers two types of training programs: (1) the ministerial training program that results in the trainee becoming an ordained Soto Zen minister in Hawaii and being awarded the title "reverend," and (2) the Lay Temple Assistant Program, instituted in 2008 with the support of Bishop Jiho Machida and the Soto ministers of Hawaii, which allows a lay member to receive training under the guidance of his or her minister for the purpose of serving as a lay assistant to that minister. Upon completion of this second program, the trainee receives the title "Lay Temple Assistant."

Let me describe to you the ways in which a lay temple assistant can assist his or her minister. He or she can lead weekly and monthly services such as Sunday School Family Services and Kannon-ko services, as well as conduct bedside services after death (called makuragyo services in Japanese) when a minister is not available to do so. He or she can also lead zazen sessions when asked to do so and can assist the minister at major services, memorial services, and blessing ceremonies. The lay temple assistant can serve his or her minister and sangha in a variety of ways, which include overseeing the cleaning of the main temple hall (hondo) and proper set up of the altars, and helping to prepare Dharma materials and other kinds of materials for sangha activities. Especially at temples that do not have a resident minister, a lay temple assistant can be a tremendous asset in keeping the temple going.

Continuation of "The Lay Temple Assistant Program"

Although a lay temple assistant has many responsibilities at the temple, he or she is not responsible for officiating major services such as funerals, memorial services, weddings, or blessings. These responsibilities, along with overseeing the administration of the temple and providing spiritual counseling at the temple are solely the responsibility of the minister.

The training of a temple assistant takes a minimum of 12 months; in some cases, several years, depending upon the circumstances. The minister makes a commitment to mentor the trainee; the trainee makes a commitment to learn what is required. Ideally, the relationship between the minister and the lay trainee is one of mutual respect.

At the Spring HSMA meeting that was held at the Pagoda Hotel on February 17, a ceremony was held in honor of Jill Teiho Wagner, who fulfilled the requirements of this program. I am grateful to have a lay temple assistant who's as sincere as Teiho and who aspires to serve the sangha in many ways. My daughter Amy Jikai of Daifukuji & Arden Daishin Loomis of the Betsuin have also begun this journey of training, and have been recently joined by Thomas Kirkpatrick of the Taishoji Soto Mission. Of course, we can never forget the loving service provided by our first lay temple assistant, the late Helen Jikyu Kishi of the Ryusenji Soto Mission of Wahiawa. The gifts of love & service provided by such individuals are as deep and pure as the sound of the temple bell. What a blessing our lay temple assistants are!

Gift Shop News by Clear Houn Englebert

The gift shop has an unusual antique scroll. It's Kannon, painted by the great Obaku Zen monk, artist, and calligrapher Mokuan Shoto, who was born in the Fujian Province of China in 1611 and died in Nagasaki in 1684. He is one of the three most famous calligraphers of Obaku, which is the smallest Zen denomination in Japan (Soto being the largest). Obaku is related to Rinzai, and like Rinzai had the support of the samurai. (Soto was called the Zen of the farmers.)

Mokuan was 18 when he was ordained, and one of his teachers was Zen Master Ingen who later immigrated to Japan, fleeing persecution from the conquering Ching armies. At Ingen's request, Mokuan came to Japan in 1655, and became Ingen's senior disciple. He founded 24 temples, including Zuishoji that became Obaku's headquarters in Edo (now Tokyo). Many of the Obaku monks who fled from China were accomplished calligraphers and are credited with introducing to Japan the forceful, elegant calligraphic style of the late Ming Dynasty. The calligraphic influence is obvious in the folds of Kannon's robe. Mokuan's body is enshrined at Manpukuji, a major monastery that he and Ingen co-founded.

Mokuan's legacy, both artistic and spiritual, was substantial and long lasting. He ordained thousands of women and men, both lay and monastic, and had 46 Dharma heirs, most of them Japanese. His art and calligraphy is in some of the world's most famous museums. This unique scroll has one of the bottom roller ends missing and is priced at a bargain of $300.

Zen Retreat Held

On March 9th, a group of forty Zen practitioners from Daifukuji and around the island spent a day in silence, sitting in zazen, walking, eating, doing yoga, listening to Dharma talks, and tracing pictures of buddhas and bodhisattvas. The only time that they used their voices during this one-day retreat was during the chanting of the sutras and Buddhist verses.

Wearing name tags that bore the words "In silence....." followed by their names, they moved wordlessly from one activity to the next in the spirit of zazen. A big mahalo goes out to the Daifukuji Zazenkai for sponsoring this retreat and to the many participants who offered their mindfulness and compassion.

A Labor of Love by Rev. Jiko Nakade

Last month I wrote about the orchid garden that the Kona Daifukuji Orchid Club offered as a centennial gift to our temple. Today I am showing you a photo of this narrow, rocky strip of earth that lies between the Kannon Hall and columbarium. KDOC members have done a tremendous amount of backbreaking work moving stones and creating an access path. It is a labor of love, a gift to the temple for which I am truly, truly grateful. I pray that the work will be accomplished in the spirit of cooperation, respect, and harmony and that all involved will be safe and happy. May this garden be a garden where peace is cultivated, where the seeds of kindness are watered, and where compassion and joy flower. This is my prayer for this orchid garden.
